

WHAT IS FAFP?

The Florida Association for Food Protection is comprised of a diverse membership of Industry, Government and University Officials dedicated to the research and educational development of its members and the community we serve.

When joining this group of over 250 members, you are entering an association from which you can benefit in numerous ways. It allows you to network with many prominent individuals and companies with which you can share food safety knowledge and resources aimed at improving Florida's food supply. Becoming a member is your link to the food safety industry and a clearinghouse of resources.

Every year, the association holds an Annual Educational Conference that attracts members from all over the state of Florida. Voted the best annual conference for 1999, 2003 & 2004 by the International Association for Food Protection, the conference is insightful and enjoyable. The conference has a casual atmosphere allowing attendees to interact with one another while exchanging ideas and information on current events and new technologies relating to the safety of our food supply.

Along with interesting speakers a small exhibit area is set up for companies wishing to advertise their services and equipment.

Below is a list of additional benefits you can participate in with you membership.

- Quarterly Educational Luncheon, held throughout the state of Florida.
- Annual State Science Fair Judging
- Quarterly Newsletter
- Student Scholarship Opportunities
